in light of the foregoing

In August 2018, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2019 (NDAAs FY2019) was enacted in the United States, concerning spending authorizations and procurement activities of the United States Government.

This legislation includes video surveillance equipment within the definition of “covered telecommunications equipment” and identifies specific suppliers, cameras, and components whose use is expressly prohibited in the implementation of video surveillance systems connected to the United States Government.

For the purposes of the aforementioned legislation, the term “covered telecommunications equipment or services” refers, among other things, to any equipment or service provided by any of the following entities:

- Huawei Technologies Company or ZTE Corporation, including any subsidiary, affiliate, or entity otherwise controlled by or associated with such companies;
- Hytera Communications Corporation;
- Hangzhou Hikvision Digital Technology Company;
- Dahua Technology Company, including any subsidiary, affiliate, or entity otherwise controlled by or associated with such company.

declare that the following products
